Presentation Overview

Minnesota has had a state aviation agency for 73 years. In 1976, the Department of Aeronautics is one of several agencies that was consolidated into current-day MnDOT. This presentation will provide insight into MnDOT's role in aviation.

Presenter:

Cassandra Isackson

Cassandra Isackson is the director of aeronautics for the Minnesota department of transportation. Her office is responsible for promoting aviation and aviation safety. They provide support to cities, counties, and other agencies in the development, maintenance, and safe operation of public airport facilities. She has worked in transportation for 22 years and is a registered professional engineer in the state of Minnesota.
